OTHER LEGAL PROCEEDINGS

The Panel is not aware of any other legal proceedings which are pending or decided and which relate to the disputed domain names.

IDENTIFICATION OF RIGHTS

IDENTIFICATION OF RIGHTS

The Complainant provided evidence of ownership of a large number of SUPERDRY trademarks, inter alia:

- International trademark SUPERDRY registered on June 5, 2019 under No. 1494694;
- European trademark SUPERDRY registered on February 2, 2012 under No. 009883372;
- US trademark SUPERDRY registered on February 25, 2014 under No. 4487094.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

The Complainant is DKH Retail Limited, a UK registered company and a wholly owned subsidiary of Superdry Limited, a UK registered company trading as the brand "SUPERDRY". The Complainant is a well-known designer and retailer of clothing and apparel related accessories

The Complainant owns trademarks rights on the term SUPERDRY, and owns and operates the domain name <superdry.com> and the corresponding website.

All disputed domain names were registered between May and November 2023.

PARTIES CONTENTIONS

COMPLAINANT

Procedural element: Request for Consolidation

The Complainant asserts that all the disputed domain names are owned or under the effective control of a single person or entity, or a group of individuals acting in concert, as they share similarities: close registration date, sole registrar, same patterns, etc.

Legal elements

The Complainant submits that the disputed domain names are identical or similar to the point of confusion with its SUPERDRY trademarks. The Complainant asserts that the addition of generic or geographic terms is not sufficient to escape the finding that the disputed domain names are confusingly similar to the trademark SUPERDRY.

Per the Complaint, the Respondent is not known by the Complainant. The Complainant contends that Respondent is not affiliated with nor authorized by the Complainant in any way and that Respondent has no rights or legitimate interests in respect of the disputed domain names. The Complainant does not carry out any activity for, nor has any business with, the Respondent. Furthermore, part of the disputed domain names resolve to websites resembling the official website of the Complainant at <superdry.com>, which is neither a bona fide offering of goods or services, nor a legitimate non-commercial or fair use under Policy. The websites reproduce the Complainant's name and logo. Other disputed domain names resolve to pay-per-click pages of commercial links.

As regards the bad faith of the Respondent, by registering many domain names reproducing the Complainant's well-known trademark and linking part of them with websites resembling the Complainant's official website, the Respondent has intentionally attempted to attract, for commercial gain, Internet users to its website or other online location, by creating a likelihood of confusion with the Complainant's mark. The Complainant equally asserts that the Respondent has entered a pattern of conduct where it has registered domain names in order to prevent the owner of the trademark or service mark from reflecting the mark in a corresponding domain name.

RESPONDENT

NO ADMINISTRATIVELY COMPLIANT RESPONSE HAS BEEN FILED.

RIGHTS

The Complainant has, to the satisfaction of the Panel, shown the disputed domain names are identical or confusingly similar to a trademark or service mark in which the Complainant has rights (within the meaning of paragraph 4(a)(i) of the Policy).

NO RIGHTS OR LEGITIMATE INTERESTS

The Complainant has, to the satisfaction of the Panel, shown the Respondent to have no rights or legitimate interests in respect of the disputed domain names (within the meaning of paragraph 4(a)(ii) of the Policy).

BAD FAITH

The Complainant has, to the satisfaction of the Panel, shown the disputed domain names have been registered and are being used in bad faith (within the meaning of paragraph 4(a)(iii) of the Policy).

PROCEDURAL FACTORS

CONSOLIDATION - Multiple underlying Registrants

It is well established that where the particular circumstances of a given case indicate that common control is being exercised over the disputed domain names, consolidation may be granted, provided that it would be fair and equitable to all parties.

The Complainant asserts that, on the balance of probabilities, all of the disputed domain names are owned or under the effective control of a single person or entity, or a group of individuals acting in concert.

The Complaint identifies a number of common factors:

- All of the disputed domain names use a similar naming pattern, namely the entirety of Complainant's trademark, accompanied by a geographical term and/or a generic term;
- Some of the domain names resolve to very similar websites that impersonate the Complainant and which serve the same function, namely the sale of alleged SUPERDRY products;
- Some of the disputed domain names contain the Complainant's visual mark in the header of the page, and substantially the same fake copyright notice at the bottom;
- All of the disputed domain names were registered between May and July November; some of them in groups on the same date, and use the same Registrar.

The Panel first notes that under par. 3 (c) of the UDRP Rules, the complaint may relate to more than one domain name, provided that the domain names are registered by the same domain-name holder. Consolidation is also addressed in WIPO Overview 3.1, section 4.11, which states that "panels look at whether (i) the domain names or corresponding websites are subject to common control, and (ii) the consolidation would be fair and equitable to all parties. Procedural efficiency would also underpin panel consideration of such a consolidation scenario".

The Panel, in line with decisions of other panels in similar cases (see, for example, CAC case No. 105420), considers that, on the balance of probabilities, all of the disputed domain names are under the control of a single person or entity, or group of individuals acting in concert.

Therefore, the Panel decides to grant the requested consolidation.

The Panel is satisfied that all procedural requirements under UDRP were met and there is no other reason why it would be inappropriate to provide a decision.

PRINCIPAL REASONS FOR THE DECISION

Notwithstanding the fact that no Response has been filed, the Panel shall consider the issues present in the case based on the statements and documents submitted by the Complainant.

Paragraph 4(a) of the Policy directs that the Complainant must prove each of the following elements:

1. the disputed domain names are identical or confusingly similar to a trademark or service mark in which the Complainant has rights; and
2. the Respondent has no rights or legitimate interests in respect of the disputed domain names; and
3. the disputed domain names were registered and are being used in bad faith

Identical or Confusingly Similar

The Complainant must establish that it has a trademark or service mark and that the disputed domain name is identical or confusingly similar to that trademark or service mark to succeed. The Complainant has provided evidence of ownership of several SUPERDRY trademarks for more than 20 years.

The question of identity or confusing similarity for the purpose of the Policy requires a comparison of the disputed domain names with the trademarks in which the Complainant holds rights. According to section 1.7 of the WIPO Overview of WIPO Panel Views on Selected UDRP Questions, Third Edition (“WIPO Overview 3.1”), “this test typically involves a side-by-side comparison of the domain name and the textual components of the relevant trademark to assess whether the mark is recognizable within the disputed domain name”. Also, according to section 1.7 of the WIPO Overview 3.1, “in cases where a domain name incorporates the entirety of a trademark, or where at least a dominant feature of the relevant mark is recognizable in the domain name, the domain name will normally be considered confusingly similar to that mark for purposes of UDRP standing”.

All disputed domain names wholly incorporate the Complainant’s trademark SUPERDRY, followed by generic terms such as “outlet”, “sale”, or “store”, or geographic terms such as “belgium”, “romania”, “portugal”, or country codes such as “uk” (referring to the United Kingdom), or “cz” (referring to the Czech Republic).

The addition of these generic or geographic terms to the SUPERDRY trademark of the Complainant in the disputed domain names, does not prevent a finding of confusing similarity with the Complainant’s trademarks. The fact that a domain name wholly incorporates the Complainant’s trademark is sufficient for this Panel to establish identity or confusing similarity for the purpose of the Policy, despite the addition of other words to such marks.

Quite to the contrary indeed, the addition of these terms only reinforces the likelihood of confusion in the mind of the general public.

It is well accepted by UDRP panels that a generic Top-Level Domain (“gTLD”), such as “.com”, is typically ignored when assessing whether a domain name is identical or confusingly similar to a trademark.

The disputed domain names are confusingly similar to the Complainant’s trademark, therefore the requirement of paragraph 4(a)(i) of the Policy is satisfied.

Rights or Legitimate Interests

Under paragraph 4(c) of the Policy, any of the following circumstances, if found by the Panel, may demonstrate the Respondent’s rights or legitimate interests in the disputed domain name:

1. before any notice to it of the dispute, the Respondent’s use of, or demonstrable preparations to use, the disputed domain names or a name corresponding to the disputed domain names in connection with a bona fide offering of goods or services; or
2. the Respondent has been commonly known by the disputed domain names, even if it has acquired no trademark or service mark rights; or
3. the Respondent is making a legitimate non-commercial or fair use of the disputed domain names, without intent for commercial gain to misleadingly divert consumers or to tarnish the trademark or service mark at issue.

The consensus view of UDRP panels on the burden of proof under paragraph 4(a)(ii) of the Policy is summarized in section 2.1 of the WIPO Overview 3.1, which states: “[...] where a complainant makes out a prima facie case that the respondent lacks rights or legitimate interests, the burden of production on this element shifts to the respondent to come forward with relevant evidence demonstrating rights or legitimate interests in the domain name. If the respondent fails to come forward with such relevant evidence, the complainant is deemed to have satisfied the second element.”

In the absence of a rebuttal from the Respondent, the Panel finds that the Respondent is not commonly known by any of the disputed domain names. The Complainant has not at any time authorised or licensed the Respondent to use “SUPERDRY” as a domain name, business or trading name, trade mark or in any other way.

In addition, nothing in the record shows any bona fide offering of goods or services from the disputed domain names on the part of the Respondent before the submission of the Complaint. On the contrary, the current use of the disputed domain names, some of which direct to active websites impersonating the Complainant, cannot be deemed in bona fide.

The Respondent has no right or legitimate interests in the disputed domain names, the requirement of paragraph 4(a)(ii) of the Policy is satisfied.

Registration and Use in Bad Faith

For the purpose of Paragraph 4(a) (iii) of the Policy, the following circumstances, in particular but without limitation, if found by the Panel to be present, shall be evidence of the registration and use of the disputed domain names in bad faith:

1. circumstances indicating that the holder has registered or has acquired the disputed domain names primarily for the purpose of selling, renting, or otherwise transferring the disputed domain name registrations to the Complainant who is the owner of the trademark or service mark or to a competitor of that Complainant, for valuable consideration in excess of the holder’s documented out-of-pocket costs directly related to the disputed domain names; or
2. the holder has registered the disputed domain names in order to prevent the owner of the trademark or service mark from reflecting the mark in a corresponding domain name, provided that the holder has engaged in a pattern of such conduct; or
3. the holder has registered the disputed domain names primarily for the purpose of disrupting the business of a competitor; or

4. by using the domain names, the holder has intentionally attempted to attract, for commercial gain, Internet users to the holder's website or other online location, by creating a likelihood of confusion with the Complainant's mark as to the source, sponsorship, affiliation, or endorsement of your website or location or of a product or service on the holder's website or location.

Based on the evidence on the record, the Panel is satisfied that at least the situations in (ii) and (iv) above are present in this case.

Indeed, the Respondent registered several dozen domain names, all reproducing the SUPERDRY trademark of the Complainant identically, and associating it with generic terms related to retail (e.g. "outlet", "shop") or country names (e.g. "belgium", "romania", "cz"). The pattern of conduct of the Registrant is, in the present matter, clearly established by the number of domains that are subject to the dispute, and the Panel sides with the Complainant in that the Respondent has willingly registered several dozen domain names to prevent the Complainant from reflecting their mark in the disputed domain names.

The Complainant additionally provided evidence that some of the disputed domain names are used in connection with websites displaying the Complainant's name and logo, and offering pretend SUPERDRY-branded products for sale. Therefore, the Respondent is using the disputed domain names in such way as to intentionally attempt to attract customers for commercial gains, by creating and maintaining a likelihood of confusion with the Complainant and its marks. By doing so, and in light of the large number of disputed domain names, the Respondent is inevitably disrupting the business of the Complainant.

The Panel finds that, at the time of registration, the Respondent unequivocally had full knowledge of the Complainant's earlier trademarks, which have been enjoying worldwide reputation and fame for decades.

The Respondent registered and has been using the disputed domain names in bad faith, therefore, the requirement of paragraph 4(a)(iii) of the Policy is satisfied.
